

Inchrye Steadings, Lindores, Cupar KY14 6JD

Directions

From Edinburgh, travelling north, take Junction 8 of the M90 on to the A91. Continue for 18 miles along the A91. After Auchtermuchty turn left on the B937 signposted Lindores. Follow that road and at the T-Junction take a right on the A913 towards St. Andrews and follow the road for approximately 0.5 mile and Inchrye Steading can be seen just on the right-hand side.

Description

There can be few more romantic settings than Inchrye Steading, a prominent 'B' listed building nestling deep in the Howe of Fife countryside, but with easy access to the main A92 trunk road.

It is believed that the U-shaped steading belonged to Inchrye Priory, a Georgian Gothic revival house built in 1827 and demolished in the 1960s. Most of the architectural features are still intact, including the distinctive castellated dovecot and polygonal turrets.

The Good House Company will create five beautiful substantial steading properties all with 4 bedrooms and each retaining historic features such as the clock tower, kennels and horse mill. Each one will have high specification and with garages, large private gardens and landscaped communal areas, the steadings will make fantastic family homes.

Situation

Set amidst the gently rolling hills of rural Fife, Inchrye Steadings has stunning views over the local hills, farms and countryside. Lindores is home to a historic abbey and distillery.

Outdoor enthusiasts are admirably catered for with an extensive network of tracks and paths that are ideal for cycling and horse-riding. More than 100 golf courses - including the famous St Andrews Links - are within easy reach.

St. Andrews, Perth, Cupar and Dundee are all within easy reach and even Edinburgh or Glasgow are easily accessible. Edinburgh Airport is only 40 miles away allowing you to access the transport network easily for such a stunning rural location.

When it comes to leisure time, residents of Inchrye are spoiled for choice, with a range of attractions and activities both in Fife and its neighbouring county of Perth and Kinross.

The Inchrye community enjoys enviable view of the hills, farmland, lochs and is close to the coastal estuary of the Tay at Newburgh. The local town of Newburgh and village of Dunbog have good schools and local amenities such as shops and restaurants. A good secondary schooling is available in Cupar at Bell Baxter High School.

For history lovers, Lindores is a small village in Fife, Scotland, in the parish of Abdie, about two miles from Newburgh. It is situated on the north-east shore of Lindores Loch. A possible derivation of the name Lindores is 'church by the water'. The ruins of Abdie church, about 0.5 miles south-west of the village are possibly the site of an ancient shrine connected to the Celtic foundation at Abernethy. After the foundation of Lindores Abbey in 1191 the church was given to the abbey. A Pictish stone dating from the 3rd century stood on a nearby ridge until 1850, but is now in the church yard. Traces of an ancient castle, thought to have belonged to Macduff, Thane of Fife, have been found at the eastern end of the village. The battle of Black Innsyde at which William Wallace defeated Aymer de Valence, the 2nd Earl of Pembroke, was fought near the village.

Just up the road is Lindores Abbey Distillery, thought to be the oldest distillery in the world. It is claimed that the first written reference to whisky being produced in Scotland relates to Lindores Abbey. The Exchequer Rolls of 1494 lists that, by order of King James IV, 'eight bols malt' be presented to Tironensian monk Friar John Cor to produce 'aqua vitae' – the water of life. It is thought that Friar Cor resided at Lindores, and the Abbey has become known as the 'spiritual home of Scotch whisky'.

Specification
